Freeware Yamipod program is an independent app that you can escape your iPod that allows you to manage your iPod music without iTunes. If you remember my self-sufficient iPod function, Yamipod looks an updated version, richest of VPOD functionality that is presumed to run on Mac OS X, Windows and Linux. With yamipod you can copy music to and from your ipod, play your music from your ipod on your computer and also managing podcasts and rss.se news ever wanted to manage your ipod from any computer without the need for iTunes , Yamipod looks like a fantastic solution.Yamipod while using windows more often, I miss all EMACS equivalents that I use regularly on the Macintosh. (Emacs is a very ancient text modification program that dates back to the 1970s. The old habits die.) For this, I knew I had to find a key reassignment program. A quick search for Google Autohotkey, an assignment assignment of the free and open source button and a macro program that works on the recent versions of Windows. Autohtkey is not what most people would call "friendly". Rather than provide the user with a simple program graphic and macro interface, you have to learn its macro definition language. A help file Details This exhaustive language. For example, here are the definitions I created to add my EMacs control equivalents. ^ P :: send {numberadup} ^ n :: send {numberdown} ^ f :: send {numberdight}} b :: send {numberpadleft} ^ d :: send {} ^ to :: send {home} ^ e :: send {end} ^ and :: send {end} Windows, Mac, Linux: Firefox Extension Blocksite is a Distraction-Killer that blocks websites to waste time from your browser. Blocksite Kill attempts to access a site: also disables all connections to that site, displaying only the link text without a clickable link. This extension recalls the excellent writing of the invisibility cloak of Gina for Greasemonkey, but lacks some of the functionality (for example, you can not take the block after certain hours or on weekends). However, the Blocksite is probably a little easier to configure and is more than a type of type "I-no-want-to-go-here-never-ever". A few weeks ago we have published the "Chlok Invisibilty" Greasemonkey scripts such as empty spaces ... Inclusive - nor of these solutions travel your trigger, check other ways to ban websites to waste time. Thanks Mike! [Mozilla] Photos Courtesy: 5688709 / Pixabay In the world of modern technology, we have so much knowledge at hand that is almost overwhelming. Sometimes it is easy to forget that we have access to everything. But we do, and it can be a rescuer because, while we might think we have all the thing to "live our life" down, we are probably losing a lot of tricks tricksMake our life even easier. Here are some hacks that will change your life for the better. Every time you go to a hotel, even though everything was cleaned, it would be nice not having to put the toothbrush on the sink. It is in a well-defined sketch area, which is not ideal for something that is used to clean your teeth. Photo Courtesy: Engin Akyurt / Pixabay to keep your toothbrush clean, just make a hole at the bottom of a paper cup and use it as a support for your toothbrush. (If you don't have one in your room, the front desk can probably procure one.) It's a ridiculously easy hack that is guaranteed to keep your clean and clean toothbrush during your stay. Take a shower when you have a cold is pleasant, it can help free your nasal breasts and make you feel much warmer than before entering. But if there was a way to make the showers even better? Well, apparently there is. Photo Courtesy: Olya Adamovich / Pixabay creates a Vicks Vaporub ice cube. Mix two liters of boiling water and two tablespoons of Vaporub, then fill a tray of ice and freeze it. Put a cube in the shower next time you're sick. You get vicks steam immediately, helping you to unlock breasts and ears, a perfect trick to make you feel a million times better. So, your recipe for cookies includes softened butter, but you forgot to take it from the fridge. Plop the butter in the microwave for a few seconds, just to move from cold to melting in a moment. Surely there is a trick that can help you with this puzzle and make you have your cookies. Photo Courtesy: Aline Ponce / Pixabay Well, there is. Heat a high glass by pouring boiling water. Once the glass is hot, throw the water out and put the glass over a butter stick. Butter will be heated quickly without melting. We all know the difficulty try to heat bowls or dishes one at a time in the microwave oven. It looks trivial, but you can get quite annoying, especially if you have a lot of things to heat. But there is a life trick that can also make this task easier. It's so easy to ask you why you didn't think about yourself. Photo Courtesy: Jessica Lewis / Unsplash Just balance one of the bowls or plates over a cup. It is quite robust, and means that you can insert two or maybe three bowls (depending on how big they are) in your microwave simultaneously. The sheets are everyday objects, so you might think that we have understood how to keep them. Surprisingly, most of us are probably hurt. In the linen wardrobe can get messy and disorganized quite quickly, and you could find you pulling out three different leaves from three different sets whenever you want to make your bed. Photo Courtesy: Keep your set of separate sheets in pillowcases. It can help keep your way closet more organized and keep all your set of the sheet apart, making day of the laundry a breeze. Try and see what you're missing. It opens. Open.Freezer to get out of a popsicle, and that open peas bag frozen falls out, spreading ice and peas anywhere. It is a disaster waiting to happen. And even if your frozen bags do not fall, all those bags are collected in the freezer. Photo courtesy: Marco Verch / Flickr Try to use heavy binding clips to keep the freezer a little more organized. You can hang the freezer bags from the racked shelf in the freezer, making it much easier to find everything - and make a frozen dish catastrophe much less likely. Life in a small kitchen can be difficult, especially when you don't have enough counter space to keep all the ingredients you're preparing for a delicious dinner. To maximize all the available space, there is a super easy to use makeup, and everything you need is a cutting board. Photo of courtesy: Jason Briscoe / Unsplash just open one of your kitchen drawers and balance the cutting board above it. You will immediately have extra counter space to contain ingredients or tools, and (if the drawer is quite robust) you also have an extra shredding space. It is fast and easy and make cooking much more pleasant. No one wants to spend money on expensive ice packages, but when he finds he needed it, suddenly you are not so sure to avoid the cost was a good idea. There are alternatives to buy them, but, and actually are quite easy to do. Photo of Courtesy: CongerDesign / Pixabay Cook a sponge in the water, seal it in a plastic bag with zipper and freeze it. When you're ready to use it, take a towel or a rag so that doesn't freeze your skin, and your ice pack is ready. It does not drip anywhere while melts, and you can reuse how many times it is necessary. Bobby Pins are one of the requirements of the hair world; They are also some of the most difficult things to keep track of. They always seem to end at the bottom of a bag or a drawer, behind a sofa or under a bed. Never where they should be. Photo of courtesy: Marco Verch / Flickr to make the morning routine easier, use a magnetic strip to keep them organized. Just put one in the bathroom drawer (threading it in the back is a pleasant option), and use it to align all the pins of the belly. You will never go to look for them. Sunday Brunch is always fun, but cleanliness is slightly less fun. Trying to wear all that pancake batter into the pan can do for a dry disaster, even if you are a great ladder. But there is a sneaky hack that you can use to keep the brunch fun and minimize cleaning. Photo of courtesy: Tabea / Pixabay Pour the pancake batter into a bottle of empty ketchup (or similar juice). The batter will easily get out, and you are much less likely to drip on the whole counter. Moreover, it is Making funny designs with the batter without buying a fantasy tool. Bring the brunch! Of course, we could watch the expiration dates on our egg cartons, but sometimes it's not the most precise way to determine freshness. And if your eggs are fresh somewhere, part, there is a printed date that you can look at. There's an easy way to tell exactly how fresh the eggs are. Photo courtesy: Jill Wellington/Pixabay Fill a clear bowl with water and put your egg in it. If it sinks to the bottom and sits on its side, it's very cool. The more erect she is, the older she is. If he floats all the way to the top, he's probably too old to eat. Sometimes the usual size of plastic zip bags are not large enough. Maybe you're trying to protect a book from the rain while it's in your backpack, or maybe you're trying to carry a lot of snacks for a large group. Whatever the reason, there's a solution. Photo courtesy: Steven Depolo/Flickr Take two of any baggie size you have (they need to be the same size) and turn one of them inside out. Now, when you put them end-to-end, they'll connect to each other at their hinges, doubling the size of the bag. Seeing the fear of the phone charger and giving it out is one of the most disappointing things of our time â something that is based on a daily basis, gone in a flash. There is a fairly easy way to prolong the life of your charger and save it from giving it out, however. Photo courtesy: StockSnap/Pixabay Use a spring from an old pen to protect the cord and keep it from bending long. Just slide the spring towards the end of the cable, where it is most likely to bend, and it will hold the cable straight. Enjoy a functional charger for a long time. Admit it. We were all disappointed at some point by our apparent inability to microwave properly. We remove our food and the edges are lava-hot while the medium is still, quite literally, frozen. Fortunately, there's a super easy hacker to save you from culinary catastrophe every time. Photo courtesy: bremen werda/Pixabay All you have to do is organize your food around the edge of the plate. If you have a dish full of nuggets, for example, arrange them in a large circle near the perimeter of the dish. It will make sure that the food is heated evenly, so you will have perfectly heated food every time. Saving plastic bags is pretty much a given, right? But organizing them seems to remain a mystery for centuries. No matter what you do, they seem to end up in a tangled plastic blast on the back of a closet somewhere. Photo courtesy: Dick Schaefer/Flickr But don't despair â there is an easy hack to organize all those bags. Take an old cloth box, and fill it with all the plastic bags currently lurking around your kitchen. It keeps your bags well organized, and makes it really easy to grab one without taking six at a time. We all had that moment of defeat when a zipper goes off. The bag or pants may still be in the first of their But we can no longer use them because we can no longer zip the hinges. Well, in reality there is a fairly easy solution for that problem. Photo of courtesy: Becky Stern / Flickr Use a paper clip or a paracord to go through the zipper bit that is still there, and you will be fine. It is true, real, doesn't look so fashionable, but it's worth it if you want to save that suitcase or your favorite vintage jeans. This could be less widely used, but it is still a useful hack. Maybe you met someone just a couple of times, whether it's a colleague, a new person you're dating or a friend of a friend. You realize you forgot their name, so embarrassing! Photo Courtesy: Pexels/Pixabay Instead of submitting to this, take them to Starbucks. Yes, you read well. See which name is called for their drink, and you will have your answer without having to reveal that you have forgotten their name. Also, you get bonus points to go with them to get a coffee. The hotel rooms are usually quite comfortable for guests, but most of them also share a similar problem. Their curtains simply do not close completely, leaving you with a strip of light that enters to keep you awake or wake up to a ridiculous hour. Photo Courtesy: Pexels/Pixabay To save your sleep, just a coat rack (which the hotel rooms tend to have in abundance). Take one of the clothes hangers for pants that has clips, and clip the two curtains together. You will get rid of that strip of light, letting you enjoy a good night of sleep. You go to bring out the garbage, but the bottom of the bag is practically a soup of different liquids that dripped down. It sounds disgusting, but unfortunately it's something we have to deal with regularly. To avoid it in the future, try using a simple hack. Photo Courtesy: Anja/Pixabay Put some old newspaper pages at the bottom of your garbage bag. They absorb all the coarse food fluids that end up in your trash, so you don't have to deal with a crap bag next time you bring out the trash. It seems that today we have an infinite number of cables running everywhere in our homes, although many of our devices are wireless. Sometimes it can be a difficult task to keep them all organized, and it is an even more difficult task to make them look beautiful while we are there. Photo Courtesy: Andrew Martin/Pixabay To keep the strings organized and beautiful, try using a small Lego figurine. Their hands are the perfect fit to hold the strings, and they look pretty cool while there are. You're never gonna go back to the bases, boring string organizers. Sometimes it is nice to have a couple of ice cubes in your wine, but then you stay with the tragic and inevitable consequence: watered wine while ice cubes dissolve. While this may seem like an inevitable tragedy, there is actually a hack fairly easy life to save you from it. Photo Courtesy: Thomas B./Pixabay Instead of using normal ice cubes, which will melt, freeze some grapes and use thoseYour wine. You'll still be refreshed, but they won't melt and drown. It is the perfect solution for those who do not want to deal with the flavor of watered wine (i.e. all). You know those sealing clips for chip bagsEverybody buys because we don't want our chips to stall? (Even if we're honest, how many of us let the chips sit long enough to get away?) Well, apparently we don't need to spend money on those. Photo courtesy: Marro Verch/Flickr Just take the clips from an old plastic hook â the kind you clip pants or a skirt on. Turn off the clips and voila! You have your own chip clips. These are much cheaper than the kind you buy at the store, and they actually work better, too. Keeping a kitchen drawer organized is a night battle. The pots and pans need to be stacked just like that, and all the lids usually end up in a chaotic pile somewhere, lost in the depths, despite your best intentions to keep them organized and tidy. Photo courtesy: Anna/Pixabay To help with this problem, try using those plastic control hooks. It sounds strange, but it works like a charm. Just put a couple on the back of the toilet door for each lid of the vase, and put the lid on them like a mini-serbian. It will keep your lids organized and will keep your locker much more neatro. If you have a daily pill to take, remembering whether you have taken it or not is a regular discomfort. If the drug comes in those blister packs, however, there is a quick trick you can use to make sure you know if you have taken it or not. Photo courtesy: Gabriela Sanda/Pixabay Don't buy a labeled pill case; make your own. Just write on each pill wrapping the date you are supposed to take. If it's empty, you did. No more trouble to remember or think you've forgotten. So, you've finished making a delicious dinner, but now it's time to clean up. Try scraping the sides of the pan to fry, but it's a bit of a funky corner. No matter what you do, it doesn't seem to find something that fits him perfectly, so you're left with the gun on your sides. Photo courtesy: Pexels/Pixabay Enough! For an economical and easy option, simply cut the perfect shape from a milk carton. Your cleaning task will become infinitely easier, and you won't have to spend insane amounts of money to replace the scraper when it consumes. Hanging a large mirror is a great way to add some class to any room. It makes the space appear bigger and just generally looks good. But large mirrors can get expensive, so it's not always the cheapest option. Photo Courtesy: Quark Studio/Pexels Now you can get the big-mirror effect without a big mirror price. Just hang a number of cheaper high mirrors in a rectangular pattern until you get the size you want. It's so easy, and you can find these kinds of mirrors pretty much anywhere. You will have the illusion of having a huge mirror without wasting money. The bagels are one of those pretty staples that you never seem to get tired. Make it sweet, make it salty, make it a sandwich ... It's perfect for every occasion. But if you're taking it to work, you run the risk of slamming it in your bag before you can enjoy a single delicious bite. Photo of courtesy: Dawn / Pixabay if you have old CD spindle which is located around the days of yore, you can solve this problem quite easily. Just slide the bagel on the spindle, fix the lid tight and there you have it. The bagel is perfectly protected and ready to eat. Maybe you have a new frame and you didn't realize how sharp the edges were, or maybe you're on vacation and you're dealing with a coffee table that isn't yours. Either way, sometimes those edges are sharp, and if you hit your shin it can be quite painful. There's an easy, inexpensive way to save you the pain of a shin attack, though. Photo courtesy: Sally Wynn/Pixabay Have a noodle. Yeah, one of those colorful kids play in the summer. Cut it in half vertically, then cut it the right length for the edges of the frame. We are all in this scenario: Reach your hand in the silver drawer to get a large spoon and pull out a small one. Or vice versa. Keeping our spoons organized when we don't have enough drawer space seems like an impossible task. Photo courtesy: Ulrike Leone/Pixabay You can use a simple life hack to fix this problem, however. Just alternate the spoons â put the big ones in with the handles facing the bottom and the small ones in with the handles facing the top. It's miraculously easy. Have you ever been a little saddened by how short it is during the year when you can decorate your Christmas tree? It is not at all the time, actually, that you can enjoy the decorations and lights. Not surprisingly, you're not the only one thinking about this. Photo courtesy: H_Elise/Flickr If you want to extend some time from your (artificial) Christmas tree, take a page from Japan's book: Decorating it for Halloween! Throw on some skeletons and pumpkin lights and you can enjoy a super-festive look (The nightmare before Christmas, anyone?) perfect for the whole holiday season. season.
