A message alert lajpis Yreka city received a little national recognition on Sunday, October 3, when it was a response in the famous and iconic New York Times Crossword Page. An, the issue placed by 36 down the crossword was one Northern California City Once the Palindromic Bakery Home? Â ¢ The answer? Yreka, from Course.ã, Yreka Mayor Duane Kegg said it is a welcome always news when Yreka, ã, subscribe today.Ã ¢ I think items really nice and very cool that we did He said, adding that the name of Yreka Pakery contains the famous Palindrome, something that the city was recognized for having a number of years. So, what is a palandrome? Well, it's a word, phrase or sequence that leaves the same for back the front. The bakery was a real place in the historic West Miner Street. It was in the brown-nail-authenriheth building, which is still in 322 and 324 West Miner St. it houses cords Café Italiano. According to a plate placed by the city of Yreka at the construction site, the Yreka bakery was founded in 1856 by alleged Civil War Deserer Frederick Deng. The board said there were several bakery owners over the years, and the bakery Palándromo was continually operated until 1965. When the bakery went out, the board said that another business moved with a name that carried the tradition Palindrome: Yrella Gallery. More: The New York Times Sunday Crossword Answers stated that Yreka developed from a mining camp called Diggings of Thompson. A ¢ â € ‡ ‡ â € , ¬ "NORTH MOUNTAINA ¢ â € ¬ ¬ â € fâ dry, everyone, but the B could be seen through the canvas. That reversed "- Akery" was read by a stranger, and he assumed that the signal gave the name of the camp and read like "Simleka."
