It is currently available for Microsoft Windows, Mac OS X, Linux, Android, iOS, BlackBerry OS and the Web. You can connect to multiple IM services such as AIM, BONJOUR, Facebook Messenger, Google Talk (Hangouts), IRC, XMPP (Jabber), VZ and Yahoo! Messenger networks; as well as social networking sites such as Facebook, Foursquare, LinkedIn and Twitter; and email services such as POP3 and IMAP. Trillian is no longer compatible with Windows Live Messenger or Skype, as these services have combined and Microsoft opted to interrupt SkypeKik. [3] They are also no longer compatible with MySpace connection, and no longer support a different connection for Gmail, Hotmail or Yahoo! Mail Although these may be connected through POP3 or IMAP. Currently, Trillian supports Facebook, Google, Jabber (XMPP) and Olark. Initially published on 1 July 2000, as a client of Freeware IRC, the first commercial version (Trillian Pro 1.0) was published on 10 September 2002. The program was named after Trillian, a fictitious character in the Hitchhiker Guide of the Douglas Adams galaxy. [4] An earlier version of the official website even had a tribute to Douglas Adams on its cover. [5] On August 14, 2009, Trillian "Astra" (4.0) for Windows was launched, along with its own Astra network. Trillian 5 for Windows was launched in May 2011, and Trillian 6.0 was initially launched in February 2017. [6] Characteristics Connect to multiple IM Trillian services Connect to multiple instant messaging services without the need to run multiple customers. Users can create multiple connections to the same service, and alsoGroup connections in separate identities to avoid confusion. All contacts are are In the same list of contacts. Contacts are not linked to their own instant messaging services groups, and can be dragged and loosely released. Trillian represents each service with a different color sphere. Previous versions used corporate logos for each service, but they were removed to avoid copyright problems, although some skins still use the original icons. Trillian designers chose a color coding scheme based on the underground maps used by the London Metro that uses different colors to differentiate between different lines. [7] Services of instant messaging Â, green and blue for the Trillian Astra network, Gray for IRC Â, Teal and Amber for Google Talk Â, Â Mbar and Dark Gray for Bonjour (Rendezvous) Â, Blue and Teal for Facebook Â, Púrpura for Jabber / XMPP (partially broken from 27/10). Mailing Services A white envelope for Pop Emails An envelope manila for IMAP emails An envelope of teal for twitter Previous versions of Trillian compatible: Microsoft Exchange Lotus Sametime Novell GroupWise Messenger MetaContact to remove duplicates and simplify the structure of the contact list, the Users can group multiple contact entries for the same person at an entry in the contact list, using the MetaContact function (similar to the ATTM alternative messaging function). The subcontacts will appear under the metacontact as small icons aligned in the form of a tree. Activity History Trillian Pro comes with activity history, and both record the history as flat text files and as XML files. PRO has a history manager that shows the chat history and allows the user to add markers for later review. The XML-based history makes the registry easy to manipulate, search and expand for future functions. [8] Manipulation of Trillian Pro also has a sequence manipulation function labeled as Â € œTheater, which allows the user to record, and then review, pause, rewind and quickly advance the audio and video sessions live. [9] Secureim Secureim is an integrated encryption system in the Trillian Instant Messenger Messenger encrypts user-to-user messages, so no passive observation node between the two could read encrypted messages. secureim does not authenticate so messages, and therefore is soceptible to active attacks, including simple forms of man-in-the-middle attacks. according to cerulean studios, creators of trillian, secureim encrypts messages with 128-bit blowfish encryption, only works with the oscar protocol and if both chat partners use trillian. However, the key used for encryption is set by a Diffieâ Hellman key exchange that only uses a 128-bit prime number as a module, which is extremely insecure and can be broken in a matter of minutes in a standard pc. Instant search from version 3.0 in basic and pro suites, trillian uses the English version of the free online wikipedia encyclopedia to make reference in real time using its free knowledge database, the function is used directly in a user's conversation window, when one or more words are introduced (by any of the users), trillian checks all available from a database file and if a match is found, the word appears with a pointed green underlined, when users point with the mouse over the word, the main paragraph of the corresponding article is downloaded from wikipedia and displayed on the screen as a tool board, when users click on the underlined word, they are given the option to visit the online article, emotitlips emotitlips are the video equivalent of an emoticone, during video sessions, the user can transmit a song or video to the other user in real time, one can send mp3, wav, wmv and mpg with this function, quicktime mov files as emotitlips are not currently supported, emoticonos hidden in version 2.0 to date, the set of emoticonoscontains emoticonos that do not appear in the menu but that can be used in conversations. Some of them are animations that can only be seen in Trillian Pro, but all can be used independently.[10] Skins and (Discontinued) Trillian has its own unique unwanted engine known as SkinXML. Many skins have been developed for Trillian and can be downloaded from the official gallery of skins or deviantart. [12] Trillian also came with a simpler skin language, STIXE, which is essentially a set of XML entities that simplifies repetitive codes and allows the Skimmers to share XML and graphics in the form of emoticon packets, sound packets and interfaces. The default skins of Trillian are designed by Madelena Mak. Trillian Cordillera was used in the 0.721 version of your client software, released a later day. This "AOL war" continued during the next few weeks, with cerulean releasing posterior patches 0.722, 0.723 and 0.724. [15] Trillian appeared at the audiences of Jaci Media Metrix Internet in February 2002 with 344,000 unique users, and grew to 610,000 for April 2002. While those numbers are very small compared to the main IM networks, Júpiter said to Trillian Constantly occupies the highest place according to the number of average minutes spent per month. [16] Trillian also created a special version for Omega ActiveDisk. Marketed with Trillian Pro on September 9, 2002, a commercial version, Trillian Pro 1.0 was published, in parallel with Trillian Basic 0.74. The commercial version was sold for $ 25 US for a subscription year, but all those who donated Trillian's development before were eligible for a subscription year at no cost. The new version had added M6vii and SMS messaging skills, Yahoo! Web Messenger Support, Pop-Up email alerts and new plug-ins for ferry news, time and share quotes directly to friends' lists. It seemed that Trillian Pro would be marketed to corporate clients seeking to keep in touch with suppliers or clients through an IM secured, interoperable network, and a relatively Stern user interface. The company did not have risk capital to support, and had totally depended on the donations of the users to stay alive. Trillian Pro 1.0 was nominated and chosen among three other nominees as the best Internet communication Shareware in your debut of being a Shareware "Treat before buying". [17] On April 26, 2003, Trillian's total downloads reached ten million. [18] Yahoo! and cooperation with GAIM a few weeks after the Liberation of Trillian Pro 2.0, Yahoo! Prevent Trillian from connecting to his service [19] in his "strengths to implement preventive measures to protect our users from possible spammers." Some patches were by the developers Trillian, who solved the problem. Trillian developers helped their Gaim open-source rival in solving Yahoo!'s connection problems. Sean Egan, Gaim's developer, posted on his site: "Our Cerulean Studios friends managed to break my speed record in breaking Yahoo! authentication schemes with an impressive hack feat. They sent him and here he is at Gaim 0.70." Later it was revealed that developers were friends and had helped each other on previous occasions.[20] Meanwhile, Microsoft forced its users to update MSN Messenger 5.0 for updates on their servers for security issues,[21] On October 15, 2003, it also marked the deadline for support of Trillian for MSN Messenger. However, it seems that Cerulean Studios worked with Microsoft[22] to solve the problem on August 2, 2003, long before the deadline. On March 7, 2004 and June 23, 2004, Yahoo! changed its instant messaging language again to prevent third-party services such as Trillian from accessing your service. Like previous claims, the company said the blockade is a preventive measure against spammers.[23] Cerulean Studios released some patches to solve problems in one or two days. Trillian 3 Series In August 2004, a new official blog was created to try to rebuild the connections between studios and their clients. Trillian 3 was advertised on the blog, and an advance was made available to a small group of testers. After months of beta testing, the final version of Trillian 3 was released on December 18, 2004, with features such as new video and audio chat capabilities in AIM, MSN Messenger and Yahoo! Messenger, an improved log manager and integration with Wikipedia's online encyclopedia. It also had a clean and reorganized user interface and a newOfficer on the web The version also updated the abandoned Trillian Basic .74 to match the new user interface and functionalities such as Trillian Basic 3.0. The number numerous Accumulated downloads by Trillian Basic on Download.com reached 20 million in a matter of weeks. Trillian 3.1 was released on February 23, 2005. It included new features such as the universal complement and the game (UPNP) and the support of multiple identities. On June 10, 2011, all instances of Trillian 3 Basic obtained an automatic update to Trillian 3 Pro, free of charge. U3 and Google Pack on October 21, 2005, a Trillian version was published that could work in USB U3 units. Trillian could work previously from generic flash units or other storage devices with some minor non-official modifications, known as "Trillian Anywhere". [24] A U3 version of Trillian Astra is also published in the official forum of Cerulean Studios. On January 6, 2006, Larry Page, President of Google Products, announced Google Pack, a package of various applications including Trillian Basic 3.0 such as "a free collection of safe and useful Google software and other companies that improves user experience Online and on the desktop ". According to the blog of Cerulean Studios, Trillian was discontinued from Google Pack on May 19, 2006. [25] The inclusion of Trillian in Google Pack was perplexable for some media analysts like Google had at the time its own Google Talk service that raised the benefits of an open in system. The free Trillian Basic client could not be used with Google Talk, however, Trillian Pro paid was listed as one of the "client choice" on Google Talk's client options [26] until Google Talk was replaced by Google Hangouts in May 2013. [27] Trillian Astra (Trillian 4) More than the Trillian 3.1 publication, the blog of Cerulean Studios began to spread news again and announced the next Trillian version, which will be called Trillian Astra. The name of version 4, Astra, is the used by the same fictional character that is the name of the software, which is a reference to The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy. The new version claimed to be faster and include a new login screen. A new new one www.trillianastra.com, was revealed to the public, with only the logo and the blue background. On July 3, 2009, Cerulean Studios reopened ASTRA's premium web version to public testing. On August 14, 2009, Cerulean's studios launched the final gold finish. [28] Trillian has its own social network called Astra Network, where users with ASTRA ID can communicate with each other on the network, regardless of the platform. Later, Cerulean studios registered a new domain, www.trillian.im, to provide an easier experience to use. On November 18, 2009, the first mobile version of Trillian for iPhone was released. Since 2010, the final constructions for Android, BlackBerry and Apple IOS were available for their markets (market, App World and App Store respectively). The Trillian initially costs $4.99 USD, but became free, backed by ADS in 2011. [29] As of August 2010, the Mac OS X version was in beta testing. Trillian 5 This section needs to be updated. Help update this article to reflect recent events or information recently available. (September 2014) On August 2, 2010, Trillian 5.0 was launched as a public beta version. The newer features included a redimensional interface, a history synchronization, a new interface inspired by the ribbon with integration of Windows theme, new icons of "similar to marble" for service providers, the option to return to the 3 and 4 interfaces of Trillian, and a new social network. The interface window was introduced. Along with Trillian 5.0 for Windows and the Mac Beta mentioned above. Since 2010, the final creations of Android and BlackBerry OS were available in their respective markets for free. OpenCandy included with the installation of Trillian 5.0 was a program called Opencandy, [30] that some programs including the essential security elements of Microsoft, classified as adware. [31] OpenCandy was removed shortly after May 5, 2011. Trillian 6 This section must be updated. Help update this article to reflect recent events or information recently available.
