This is a 5 levels lesson. That means you'll see five sections will focus mostly on grammar; higher levels will test your grammar and vocabulary skills! Level one is beginner, so if you're not a beginner, you should skip to level two. Ready? you have for breakfast this morning? I the film start tonight? They live in Rome; they live in Milan. What go out yesterday; I stayed at home all day. Complete each sentence with one word. Each word is a form of the verb 'do'. Contractions, like 'don't', count as one word. Pause the video and do it now. Ready? Here are the answers. What do you have for breakfast this morning? I didn't go out yesterday; I stayed at home all day. What do you need to know here? Use 'do' to make negatives and questions in the present simple and the past simple. For example, take a positive sentence: 'I like bananas.' Make a negative: 'I don't like bananas.' Make a negative: 'She doesn't like bananas.' Make a negative: 'I don't like bananas.' Make a negative: 'She doesn't like bananas.' Make bananas.' Make a question: 'Does she like bananas?' In the past simple, use 'didn't to make a questions. Take a positive sentence: 'They didn't to make a question.' Make a question. 'Does she like bananas?' In the past simple, use 'didn't to make a question.' Make a question.' They didn't to make a question.' They didn't to make a question.' They didn't arrive early.' Make a question.' They didn't to make a question.' They didn't to make a question.' They didn't arrive early.' There's one exception. Don't use 'do', 'don't', 'did' or 'didn't' with the verb 'be', or with modal verbs like 'can'. Verbs like 'can'. Verbs like 'can' make their own negatives and questions, without using 'do'. Clear? If not, you can review this section again. If you think it's difficult, you should study the present simple and past simple verb tenses. Focus on how to form negative sentences and questions, without using 'do'. Clear? If not, you can review this section again. If you think it's difficult, you should study the present simple and past simple verb tenses. second level of using do in English! Here's your challenge for level two. do what do you do you and think about your answers do didn't dishes you the do do you you taekwondo Your job is to put the words in order to make a question, not a sentence. Pause the video and think about your answers now. Ready? Let's look. What do you do? You do yoga, don't you? Did he do his homework? Didn't you do the dishes? You do taekwondo, do you? What does the first question - 'what do you do?' - mean? It means 'what's your job?'. It's common in spoken English. In level one, you saw that you use 'do' to make questions in the present and past simple. There are different kinds of question you can make, but there's another point here. 'Do' can be a main verb, which has real meaning. It can also be an auxiliary verb, which has real meaning auxiliary verb, and auxiliary an auxiliary verb. This is extremely common in English! Anyway, let's look at some different ways you can make guestions, which start with the word 'do', 'does', and so on. For example, see guestion three, You can make guestions with a guestion word, like 'what', 'where', 'whor', and so on. See guestion one for an example. You can also make questions with a question tag, like numbers two and five. This can have several different meanings. You can also use it to show surprise or interest. Here's a question: in number two, the question tag is negative - 'don't you?' - but in number five, the tag is positive - 'do you?' Do you know why? If you want to check information, meaning that you want to ask a question but you think you know the answer already, then the question tag should be the opposite of the main verb. That means, if the main verb is positive, the tag should be negative; if the main verb is negative, the tag should be positive. So, 'you do yoga, don't you?' means that I think you do yoga, and I'm asking to confirm my idea. Use a positive sentence plus a posit form is common when making small talk. You can also make negative questions, starting with 'don't', 'doesn't', or 'didn't'. You use these to express an emotion. When you use negative questions, intonation is important. Let's move on to level three. This time, we'll do something a little different. Each of these five sentences contains a mistake. Your job is to find the mistake and correct it. Can you tell me how do I sign up for the free trial? I don't like avocados but she likes. They asked me don't make so much noise. It's been difficult, but I finally feel like I'm doing some progress. Could you do a favour? I need to move this desk, and it's a two-person job. Pause the video and do it now. Think carefully about your answers. Do you need to add a word, remove a word, or change a word, remove a word, rem not to make so much noise. It's been difficult, but I finally feel like I'm doing making some progress. Could you do me a favour? I need to move this desk, and it's a two-person job. Sentence one is an indirect questions when you want to sound more polite. Indirect questions don't use 'doe,' does' as an auxiliary verb to refer to another verb - 'like' - which you used earlier. In most cases, the auxiliary verb you need depends on the verb tense, not on the original verb. The exception is verbs like 'be', 'can' and so on, which can be their own auxiliary verbs. Here, the infinitive with 'to'. Here, the infinitive with other form of 'do'. In number four, you need to know something about how to use 'do' and 'make'. This is more of a vocabulary point. In many cases, you need to remember whether a word - like 'progress' - goes with 'do' or 'make'. Number five is also a vocabulary point. There are many fixed phrases with 'do', like 'do someone a favour'. After 'do', you need a person - 'do me a favour', 'do you a favour' - and so on. So, to review, the topics covered in level three are: indirect questions, 'do' as an auxiliary verb, negative infinitives, 'do' versus 'make', and fixed phrases with 'do'. Where were you stronger or weaker? Think about what you know, and what you need to focus on to improve. Anyway, time for level four of using do in English! Here are your sentences for level four. You need to complete each sentence with two words. One word is a form of 'do'. Remember: you must use exactly two words! exercise regularly is bad for you. Not anything similar before, I was unsure about how to start. I best. I've been working too much recently. I could a long holiday! Let's see the answers. Not doing exercise regularly is bad for you. Not having done anything similar before, I was unsure about how to start. I did do it; I just forgot to send it to you. You don't have to do it perfectly, just do it to you. You don't have to do it perfectly, just your best. I've been working too much recently. I could do with a long holiday! So, what do you need to know here? In level three, you saw that there are negative infinitives, you just add 'not' to make the negative infinitives, you saw that there are negative infinitives, you just add 'not' to make the negative infinitives, you saw that there are negative infinitives, you saw that the negative infinitives infinitives, you saw that the negative infinitives infinitives infinitives infinitives infinitives infinitives infinitives infinitives infi meaning is similar to: 'Because I hadn't done anything similar before...' What about three? Can you explain what's going on there? Remember that 'do' can be both an auxiliary verb and a main verb, and it can also do both things in one sentence. Auxiliary verbs can be used to add emphasis; for example, if you want to contradict what someone else says. Here, 'did' is an auxiliary verb which adds emphasis, and 'do' is a main verb. So, if someone asked you 'Why didn't you do it?', you might answer like this 'I did do it. I just forgot to send it to you!' You use the auxiliary verb - 'did' - to add emphasis and contradict the other person. Four and five are vocabulary points. 'Do your best' is a fixed phrase meaning 'try as hard as you can.' For example, you could say 'We did our best, but we didn't have four of our best players, so it's not surprising we lost three-nil.' 'Do with' is a conversational way to say 'want'. 'I could do with a long holiday right now! Remember: you can review any section of this video as many times as you need. Here's a tip: a big difficulty with 'do' is that it has so many different uses. It can be a main verb, or it can be used in fixed phrases and phrase? Getting this clear will help you to understand how to use 'do' more accurately. Now, are you ready for level five? Let's try! Ready for the hardest challenge? Here are five of the words. One of the words must be a form of 'do'. Contractions, like 'don't', count as one word. It's not exactly what I are slim unless he improves his grades significantly. I haven't quite finished, but I'm sure I'll get in the next 1-2 days. Judging by the size of their house, they must be He wants to work for the EU, but his chances of for themselves. I've been following her diet plan, but to be honest it good. Could you do it? Let's see the answers. It's not exactly what I wanted, but I'm sure I'll get it done in the next 1-2 days. Judging by the size of their house, they must be doing well for themselves. I've been following her diet plan, but to be honest it hasn't done me much good. Most of the sentence one. In conversational English, 'do' can have the meaning of 'be enough, but not very good'. If you say 'it'll do', you mean that it's not great, but it's enough for you. Sentence two tests a grammar point. Hopefully, you know already that you can use 'do' as an auxiliary verb to refer back to a verb or verb phrase you used earlier. If you didn't use 'do' as an auxiliary verb to refer back to a verb or verb phrase you want to use 'do' as an auxiliary verb to refer back to a verb or verb phrase you want to use 'do' as an auxiliary verb to refer back to a verb or verb phrase 'his chances of working for the EU', which would be repetitive. However, here you also need an -ing verb. When you want to use 'do' as an auxiliary verb to refer back to a verb or verb phrase you used earlier. If you didn't use 'do' as an auxiliary verb to refer back to a verb or verb phrase you used earlier. If you didn't use 'do' as an auxiliary verb to refer back to a verb or verb phrase you used earlier. verb to replace an earlier verb, and you want to use an -ing form, or to plus infinitive, you should use 'do so'. 'Do so' is formal. In spoken or informal English, you'd probably say 'do it' or 'do that'. Three, four and five all test your vocabulary. In three, 'get it done' is a conversational way to say 'finish something'. In number four, 'doing well for themselves' means that they're making a lot of money, so they have a comfortable lifestyle. In sentence five, 'it hasn't done me a lot of good'. Of course, you can also use this to talk about other people. For example 'She looks so much happier these days. Switching to part time work seems to have done her a lot of good.' So, how did you do? Which topics did you find the hardest? That's all for now. See you next time! When you say that you're going to see a doctor, you may be referring to two types of medical professionals: MDs and DOs. Each title refers to the type of degree and licensing the doctor has. Both MDs and DOs have similar training and duties, but they differ in a few key areas. MDs and DOs have similar training and duties, but they differ in a few key areas. (Photo Credit: DigitalVision/Getty Images) MD stands for doctor of medicine. MDs are allopathic doctors. That means they treat and diagnose conditions using conventional medical tools like X-rays, prescription drugs, and surgery. Allopathic medicine is also called conventional or mainstream medicine. MDs can choose to be broad practitioners and work as family medicine or primary care doctors. They can also specialize in many areas, which requires further education, including: Surgery Specific body parts or organs Psychiatry Geriatric medicine Pediatrics DO stands for doctor of osteopathic medicine. They use the same conventional medical techniques as MDs but with a few other methods. DOs tend to focus more on holistic health and prevention. In holistic health and prevention. In holistic health and prevention are considered during the treatment. They also use a system of physical manipulations and adjustments to diagnose and treat people. More than half of DOs work in primary care, but they can also specialize in another area, just like MDs.DOs have all the same responsibilities and primary care, but they can also specialize in another area, just like MDs.DOs have all the same responsibilities and rights as MDs, including the abilities to perform surgery with proper training and prescribe medicine. MDs and DOs follow similar educational routes. They must first earn a 4-year undergraduate degree, and most will take pre-medicine courses during this time. After getting an undergraduate degree, they will attend either medical school or a college of osteopathic medicine. After finishing 4 years of medical education, MDs and DOs must complete an internship and a residency is on-the-job training under the supervision of more experienced doctors. Some MDs and DOs will also go on to do fellowships to learn more about a specialty. MDs and DOs often train side by side in residencies and internships, despite going to different types of schools. Both MDs and DOs must also take a licensing exam in order to practice medicine professionally. The type of licensing exam taken depends on the state that the MD or DO resides in. MDs and DOs provide similar quality of care. One study examined the health outcomes of whom were treated by a DO. The study showed that patients treated by MDs vs. DOs had nearly identical lengths of stay, readmission rates, and costs. There are a lot more MDs than DOs in the United States. Almost 9 in 10 doctors who went to a U.S. medical school have an MD degree. One study found that around 19% of doctor's visits were to DOs, and 81% were to MDs. Both allopathic medical schools and colleges of osteopathic medicine are competitive to get into. However, students attending medical schools. These lower GPAs and MCAT scores do not necessarily reflect the quality of students in DO programs. There are fewer students in colleges of osteopathic medicine compared to allopathic medicine students in the U.S. attend a college of osteopathic medicine. But interest in the DO degree is rising: between 2011-2012 and 2021-2022, enrollment in DO programs increased by 68%. DOs also learn about how the bones, nerves, and muscles work together and influence people's health. They spend extra time (usually about 200 hours) studying osteopathic manipulative medicine (OMM). This is also called osteopathic manipulative technique (OMT). OMT focuses on methods used to relieve back pain, strained muscles, and other conditions. MDs and DOs have slightly different approaches to medicine. MDs focus on looking at your symptoms and making a diagnosis based on those symptoms. They tend to take a more targeted approach to treatment. Oos, on the other hand, see the body as an integrated whole and treat health issues accordingly. This is called a holistic approach, and it is the foundation of osteopathic medicine. Because of this holistic view, they usually focus more on prevention. They may also make more lifestyle recommendations compared witho MDs. Some MDs are good doctors with professional training. A lot of their training is very similar, and both types of doctor use technology like X-rays and prescriptions. If you went to an MD and a DO, you probably wouldn't notice a lot of differences. In fact, you might not be able to tell the difference at all. If you're choosing between seeing an MD vs. DO, here are some things to think about: Approach. MDs tend to focus on diagnosing and treating one part of the body. DOs tend to think about how different parts of the body work together. For example, they might think about how skeletal conditions could affect your muscles. Location. Some areas have more DOs. For example, about 19% of doctors in New Jersey with a U.S. medical degree are DOs, compared with 7% in Alabama. See who practices in your area. Specialty. DOs tend to work in certain specialties, like family medicine, and pediatrics. About 3 in 5 DOs work in these fields. About 3 in 5 DOs work in these fields. About 3 in 5 DOs work in these fields. technique where they use their hands to apply gentle pressure on or stretch certain body parts. This can be used to diagnose and treat musculoskeletal pain and conditions. Patient satisfaction. One survey showed that people who had seen osteopathic doctors were more satisfied with their treatment than those who had been to allopathic doctors, chiropractors, and other types of health care providers. While the OMM techniques performed by DOs seem similar to those used by chiropractors, the two fields are different. Unlike DOs, chiropractors cannot practice medicine. Chiropractors focus more on the musculoskeletal system and spinal alignment. DOs can practice medicine alignment. DOs can practice medicine alignment. DOs can practice medicine alignment. extra time studying how the bones, nerves, and muscles work together. Because of this, DOs tend to approach medicine from a more holistic perspective, which means they think about how all your organs work together. Click here for our complete programme to perfect your English grammar. When we make questions in the present simple, we use 'do / does' for almost every verb. Do you like chocolate? (The main verb is 'like'.) Does she live in Madrid? (The main verb is 'like'.) Do you want to come to the party? (The main verb is 'like'.) To you want to come to the party? (The main verb is 'like'.) front and putting the subject after the verb. We don't use 'do / does'. Are you hungry? (The main verb is 'be'.) Is she at home? (The main verb is 'be'.) If we want to make a 'wh' question, it's the same - we just put the 'wh' word or phrase first. Why do you like chocolate? Where does she live in Madrid? Why are you hungry? How long is she at home?
