Star wars theme song trumpet sheet music for beginners

Update May 4th: We revisit these great themes for Rogue One to celebrate Star Wars Day! It's opening night. You're all ready for your midnight showing: got your tickets, got your perfect Star Wars shirt picked out, or maybe a whole ensemble if you're aiming to win that costume contest... but is your phone as decked out as your lovely self? No? Let's fix that. You don't know the power of the dark theme. This theme is as dark, delicious, and daring as it is elegant. Darth Vader is one of the best villains ever, and so long as we don't have to suffer through any more Anakin brooding, we're happy to see as much of him on screen as Disney is willing to give us. We could all use a little more Vader in our lives, and our home screens are no exceptions. Here's what we need: Once you've got everything that you need downloaded, it's time to dive in! Long-press on your home screen until the Wallpapers option appears at the bottom of the screen. Tap Wallpapers. Tap Pick image. Navigate to your downloaded Vader wallpaper and select it. Make sure the image is centered before tapping Set wallpaper. Open Nova Settings. Tap Look & feel. Tap Icon theme. Tap Whicons. Return to the home screen and long-press the app drawer icon. Tap Edit. Tap the icon to edit it. Select Gallery apps. Select Documents/Files. Navigate to your saved Death Star icon and select it. Ensure the entire icon is within the confines of the white bounding box before tapping Done. Tap Done to confirm your icon change. Return to your home screen. Long-press on your home screen until the Widgets options appears at the bottom of the screen. Tap Widgets. Find 1Weather in the list and tap and hold to set the widget position on your home screen. Drag the 1Weather Compact widget to the top of your home screen. In the configuration window that appears, set Background Color to Dark. Set Background opacity to 0%. Set Accent to White. Tap Done. Return to the home screen. Long-press on your home screen until the Widgets options appears at the bottom of the screen. Tap Widgets. Find KWGT in the list and press and drag the KWGT 4x2 widget to the bottom of your home screen. Tap the widget to configure it. In Exported, select Vader Music Preset. If the scaling of your widget is off, tap Layer. Adjust the widget as needed. Save your widget by tapping the floppy disc on the top bar. K-2S0 is the droid we've been looking for: a Droid that makes us laugh, even as he decides which of a thousand ways he's going to kill us. He's gritty, he's goofy, and he's prone to gore. Long-press on your home screen until the Wallpapers option appears at the bottom of the screen. Tap Wallpapers. Tap Pick image. Navigate to your downloaded K-2S0 wallpaper and select it. Make sure the image is centered before tapping Set wallpaper. Open Nova Settings. Tap Look & feel. Tap Icon theme. Tap Metal. Return to the home screen and long-press the app drawer icon. Tap Edit. Tap the icon to edit it. Select Metal. Scroll down to S and select Star Wars. Tap Done. Long-press on your home screen until the Widgets options appears at the bottom of the screen. Tap Widgets. Find 1Weather in the list and press and drag the 1Weather Compact widget to the top of your home screen. In the configuration window that appears, set Background Color to Dark. Set Background opacity to 0%. Set Accent to Blood Red. Tap Done. Return to the home screen and long-press until the Widgets options appears at the bottom of the screen. Tap Widgets. Find KWGT in the list and press and drag the KWGT 4x2 widget to the third row of your home screen. Long-press and resize the widget fit above the split Rebel/Empire logo. Tap the widget to configure it. In Exported, select K-2S0 Music Preset. If the scaling of your widget is off, tap Layer and adjust as needed. Save your widget by tapping the floppy disc on the top bar. That's no moon... it's an electronic discotheque Death Star home screen theme that's bound to blow the place so we can go home. There are boring black and white Death Star themes, but we're too cool for monochrome. That's what we have Vader around for. Now, here are the plans for the Death Star. We must get them back to the alliance! Long-press on your home screen until the Wallpapers option appears at the bottom of the screen. Tap Wallpapers. Tap Pick image. Navigate to your downloaded wallpaper and select it. Make sure the image is centered before tapping Set wallpaper. Open Nova Settings. Tap Look & feel. Tap Icon theme. Tap Supreme. Return to the home screen and long-press the app drawer icon. Tap Edit. Tap the icon to edit it. Select Supreme. Scroll down in the Bonus section and select the red icon featuring two squares with an X in the middle. Tap Done. Long-press on your home screen until the Widgets options appears at the bottom of the screen. Tap Widgets. Find 1Weather in the list and press and drag the 1Weather Compact widget to the top of your home screen. In the configuration window that appears, set Background Color to Dark. Set Background opacity to 0%. Set Accent to Royal Blue. Tap Done. Return to the home screen and long-press on your home screen until the Widgets options appears at the bottom of the screen. Tap Widgets. Find KWGT in the list and press and drag the KWGT 4x2 widget to the bottom of your home screen. Tap the widget to configure it. In Exported, select Disco Death Star Music Preset. If the scaling of your widget is off, tap Layer. Adjust as needed. Save your widget by tapping the floppy disc on the top bar. We also have a trio of Star Wars themes from The Force Awakens, including the most adorable BB-8 theme you will ever see! We also delve into a refined Rebel Alliance theme, a sinister and sharp Sith theme. May the Force - and the themes - be with you! Keep up with the latest daily buzz with the BuzzFeed Daily newsletter! Bakers Love Bakery So, your young Jedi has requested a Star Wars-themed birthday party? Great! Fans of the franchise span generations and genders, making it a fun theme for all party-goers (parents included!). The challenge? So many characters and secondary plot lines have been introduced in the years since the first movie hit theaters in 1977 that it can be hard to know what to hone in on. Should you throw your party around a specific movie or character? What about that television show your kid loves? You can, but be aware: You'll have a much easier time finding Star Wars birthday party ideas (both supplies you can buy and and DIYs) if you stick to the main storyline, since that's what most folks are familiar with, and in turn, what retailers choose to carry. To help you gear up for birthday adventures in a galaxy far, far away—and to ensure you're not lost to the dark side of party planning—we've rounded up 21 cuter-than-an-Ewok ideas for everything from invitations to desserts. (You'll even find a few kid-friendly crafts in here.) Just consider us your Yoda of party planning—and may the force be with you! 1 of 21 R2D2 Star Wars Birthday Party Invitation Email invites are great, but there's still something really special about getting a paper invitation in the mail. We love that this particular one would work for any age. 2 of 21 Planet Lollipop These planet pops would make an out-of-this-world addition to a Star Wars-themed dessert table or party favor bag. Desire something more specific? The company, I Want Candy, will actually let you design your own! 3 of 21 DIY Lightsaber Kimberly from A Night Owl came up with this absolutely brilliant lightsaber DIY! And unlike other project ideas you'll find online, these actually light up! (They're made from small flashlights and travel toothbrush holders.)Get the tutorial at A Night Owl. SHOP TRAVEL TOOTHBRUSH HOLDERS 4 of 21 Galaxy Candy Bark Candy bark is always a good idea for a party—it's affordable, super easy to make and, most importantly, delicious. But it can also be really, really pretty, as evidenced here.Get the recipe at A Night Owl.SHOP CANDY MELTS 5 of 21 R2D2 Cookie Jar amazon.com You can use this cookie jar as a decoration to corral party favors or, you know, actual cookies. Note: It does talk when you open the lid, so unless you're okay with hearing a constant "beep boop beep," you might want to skip the batteries for the party. @ 6 of 21 Chewbacca Doughnuts These woolly doughnuts are made using a simple brownie batter, store-bought frosting, and fondant (for the belt.) You can whip them up in about 50 minutes. Get the recipe at A Night Owl. SHOP FONDANT 7 of 21 Wooden Forks These may only be appreciated by the adults, but they're worth it. (And better for the environment.) 8 of 21 Star Wars Paper Lanterns 9 of 21 R2D2 Utensil Holder 10 of 21 Candy Bar Labels Use these free, printable Star Wars-themed labels to decorate jars of candy or adhere them to party favor bags. It's a simple way to turn basic candy into something special.Get the tutorial at Mom Endeavors. 11 of 21 Star Wars Plushies amazon.com Looking for a fun party favor idea for the seven-and-under crowd? These fluffy friends (that come in a set of six) will be a hit. 13 of 21 Jedi Water Bottle Covers This is a pretty darn adorable way to dress up (get it?) plain ol' water bottles. How cute would a bunch of these be all lined up on the drinks table? Get the tutorial at Crafts by Amanda. SHOP BROWN FELT 14 of 21 Lightsaber Popsicle Holders 15 of 21 Jedi Party Favor Bag What kid doesn't want to be a Jedi? Order a few non-personalized extras for last-minute RSVPs. 16 of 21 R2D2 String Lights amazon.com String these R2D2 lights up for the party, then hang them in your little one's room after to keep the fun memories going. 17 of 21 Princess Leia Headband These really couldn't be easier to make. We recommend crafting one for each guest, then handing them out as as people arrive so they can be enjoyed during the party. (Don't forget to take photos!)Get the tutorial at As the Bunny Hops. SHOP BROWN YARN 18 of 21 TIE Fighter Cookies These tiny TIE fighter cookies are made from Oreo crisps (the ones in the 100 calorie packs) and mini marshmallows. You'll want to pilot them right into your mouth before the party even starts. Get the recipe at Pretty Providence. SHOP OREO CRISPS 19 of 21 Dark Side Cupcake Toppers Lean on beautifully made fondant toppers, like these from Bakers Love Bakery, to transform plain cupcakes into little works of art. As a bonus, you can have these shipped right to your door. 20 of 21 Star Wars Birthday Card This is technically a birthday card, but it's so cute we think it could be a fun framed party decoration too. Or, use it as an invitation by printing event details on the back. 21 of 21 Cardboard Tube Ewoks Crafts are always a hit with kiddos, so pencil in some time to make these adorable Ewoks. To keep things running smoothly, you can pre-cut all the pieces and let the kids assemble themselves. Get the tutorial at Crafts by Amanda.SHOP GOOGLY EYES
