

Continue

Skip to main content Toy breed puppies should be fed 4 to 6 meals every day for the first three months, medium breed puppies should be fed thrice a day, and large breed puppies should be fed 3 to 4 meals every day. Both dry and wet food are good for puppies. Dry food is more convenient and has oral health benefits. Not to forget it also has a lower price tag. Puppies can be fed both wet and dry food. Wet food is recommended by vets since it is easy to chew, hydrates your dog better, and is more satiating. ©2024 Mars or Affiliates. Skip to main content Toy breed puppies should be fed 4 to 6 meals every day for the first three months, medium breed puppies should be fed thrice a day, and large breed puppies should be fed 3 to 4 meals every day. Both dry and wet food are good for puppies. Dry food is more convenient and has oral health benefits. Not to forget it also has a lower price tag. Puppies can be fed both wet and dry food. Wet food is recommended by vets since it is easy to chew, hydrates your dog better, and is more satiating. ©2024 Mars or Affiliates. Remember that each dogs is different. As a general guide we advise offering the daily amount of food recommended for the ideal bodyweight of your dog in the feeding guide on the pack. In the below guide you'll find the recommended daily calories for your dog, as well as feeding guidelines based on a diet of Pedigree®. If you are feeding a different brand, please consult the calorie information on-pack and adjust the amount of food accordingly to meet your dog's recommended daily calories.Please remember:To halve the daily amount of food if you are feeding two meals a day.The guidelines are based on your dog getting the right amount of exercise. If your dog has less than 1 hour exercise a day, please reduce quantity by 10%The Waltham™ Centre for Pet Nutrition recommends feeding a mixed diet where 50% of calories come from wet food and 50% from dry food.The guidelines are based on all of your dog's recommended daily calories coming from 100% complete Dry or wet food. Please adjust accordingly if you are going to feed any oral care products or treats.Please ensure that any 'non-complete' treats or food you are feeding your dog accounts for less than 10% of your dog's daily calories.Dog sizeDog's ideal body weight(kg)Daily calorie requirementMixed wet and dry diet100% wet diet100% dry dietToy4269175 + 4034580Toy5318205 + 50410100 Small6364235 + 55470110Small7409265 + 60525125Small8452296 + 70580140Small9494320 + 75635150Small10534345 + 80690165 Medium12613400 + 90790190Medium14688400 + 115880210Medium16760400 + 140980230Medium18830400 + 1601070255Medium20898400 + 1801115275Medium22965400 + 2001240195Medium241030400 + 2201325315 Large261094600 + 1901410335Large281156600 + 2101490350Large301218600 + 2301570370Large321278600 + 2501645390Large341338600 + 2631720410Large361396600 + 2851800425Large381454600 + 3001870445Large401511600 + 2701945460 Giant451651800 + 3152063505Giant501786800 + 3552232545Giant551919800 + 3952398585Giant602048800 + 4352560625 By about four weeks old, your puppy should be ready to eat solid foods and you can start switching them from milk to special dog food formulated for puppies, like PEDIGREE PUPPY™ Chicken, Rice, and Vegetable Flavor.But instead of jumping right into puppy food, start by combining water and a small amount of puppy food. Let the kibble soak until it's soft and soupy, then offer it on a flat dish. Once your puppy can easily lap this up, begin reducing the amount of water each day. Continue this process until your puppy eats the solid food without any added liquid.The whole process can take a couple of weeks, so be patient and monitor your puppy's progress to ensure they're growing as expected. It's also important to check the feeding guidelines on the packaging of the food to reference how much to feed your puppy.How Much Puppy Food Should I Feed My Puppy?Your puppy is growing quickly. Their body needs plenty of high-quality food to support their growth and development, but their stomach isn't yet large enough to handle a big meal. To help your puppy get the nutrients they need, feed them three times a day until they're six months old. Then, you can cut back to twice a day. The amount of food a puppy needs in a day varies depending on their age and size. To ensure your pet gets just the right amount, follow the feeding guidelines on their puppy food package.To see how much to feed your pup at each meal, divide the recommended amount by the number of meals you feed your puppy daily. What Is the Difference Between Puppy and Adult Dog Food?Puppies are lively and full of energy, so they need more calories and protein than adult dogs.Puppy food is specifically formulated for their rapid growth and development. It contains the nutrients, vitamins, and minerals needed to build strong bones, muscles, and a healthy immune system. When compared to adult dog food, it can have: More proteinDHA (a nutrient that helps supports brain and eye development)More fatMore calcium and phosphorusPlus, puppy food typically comes in smaller kibble sizes, making it easier for young dogs to chew. When Should My Dog Switch from Puppy Food to Adult Food?PEDIGREE PUPPY™ Food is specially formulated for dogs between 6 weeks and 18 months of age. Reference the feeding guideline table on the food package to determine when to make the switch to adult dog food based on your puppy's age and size. Keep in mind that larger breeds take longer to grow up than smaller breeds, so they might need to eat puppy food for 14 to 16 months, or even longer. How Should I Transition My Dog from Puppy Food to Adult Food?It's important to go slow when changing your dog's diet. Jumping straight from one type of food to another can cause stomach upset and other digestive issues. Instead, follow these steps to help your dog switch from puppy food to adult food: Gradually mix in the new food over a 4-day period.During this time, slowly increase the amount of PEDIGREE® adult dog food each day.Keep a close eye on their condition, and adjust the amount of food based upon the feeding guideline recommendation on the package.If any digestive problems occur, contact your veterinarian immediately. What Varieties of Puppy Food Does PEDIGREE® Brand Offer?PEDIGREE has three types of puppy food to choose from. Here's a quick look at each.PEDIGREE PUPPY™ Dry Dog FoodThis specially formulated kibble makes it easy to give your growing puppy a complete and balanced meal. It's available in two tantalizing flavors: Chicken, Rice, and Vegetable flavor and Grilled Steak & Vegetable flavor.PEDIGREE PUPPY™ Wet Dog FoodGive your puppy this 100% complete and balanced food as a stand-alone meal, or use it as a topping for their dry food. It also makes a delicious reward that any puppy would roll over for.This wet food comes in an easy-to-serve pouch format, making mealtime simple and with less mess.The PEDIGREE PUPPY™ Wet Dog Food18-Count Variety Pack contains a mix of three dog-friendly flavors:Morsels in Sauce With TurkeyMorsels in Sauce With BeefMorsels in Sauce With ChickenYou can also purchase stand-alone pouches of Morsels in Sauce With Beef.PEDIGREE PUPPY™ Wet Dog Food Complete NutritionServe this wet canned dog food alone or mix it into your pup's kibble for added flavor. Either way, your dog will love the specially prepared formula. Plus, you can feel good about feeding it to your precious pet since it's made in the USA with the finest ingredients from around the world.This puppy food comes in flavors your dog will be crazy about, like With Lamb and Rice. PEDIGREE PUPPY™ Wet Dog Food Morsels in Sauce With ChickenThis wet dog food was made for growing pups and is formulated to help support strong, healthy teeth and bones. Your dog will love this wet food, no matter which flavor you pour into their bowl. You can choose between a variety pack or with chicken. The variety pack includes Morsels in Sauce With Chicken and Morsels in Sauce With Beef. Why Do Puppies and Owners Love PEDIGREE PUPPY™ Food?PEDIGREE® dry and wet dog foods encourage, support, fortify and fuel a dog to live a happy and healthy life at every stage of life. We make puppy food that contains chicken, rice, and vegetable flavors for a balanced and complete meal. It does not contain high fructose corn syrup, artificial flavors, or added sugar. Plus, PEDIGREE PUPPY™ Food has small kibble sizes, making it perfect for a young dog with a small mouth. Here are some more reasons why puppies — and their owners — love PEDIGREE PUPPY™: Made with high-quality protein sources with Chicken Flavor or Steak FlavorContains key nutrients similar to mother's milk No fillersPEDIGREE® Brand offers food for each stage of your pet's life It's always best to start your puppy off on the food they're used to - after all, their life has already changed a lot in a short time. But if you decide that you'd rather change to another brand, or from wet to dry (or vice versa) what's the best way to go about it?Dogs are creatures of habit - especially on the inside. Once their digestive system has got used to a particular food, it needs time to adjust to something new. A sudden change can produce vomiting and diarrhoea.But while it's not sensible to offer your puppy a different food every day, it's sometimes unavoidable - for example, when they get older, they'll need to switch onto an adult food. Changing gradually is the key. Each day, mix a little more of the new food into his meals, until, after about a week, the new food has completely replaced the old one. READ NOW Have you bought or want to bring Pedigree for a puppy? But do not know how to feed Pedigree to puppy?Today I will tell you 'How to give Pedigree to puppy' in detail. I will try to answer why, what, how questions.So, let's start.How To Give Pedigree To PuppyFollow the step to feed Pedigree to puppy:45Step 1:Take one cup of hot water and pour it into the bowl.Step 2:Add Pedigree inside the bowl depending upon your dog's need and let it cool down.Step 3:Ensure that Pedigree granules will soak water; it will help the puppy quickly digest.Now you can serve your Pedigree to your puppy.So easy.But wait. We are not finished yet.Before closing the tab or going to search for another query, read the information given below. I am sure that you must have these questions in your mind.So, what to mix with Pedigree?Mixing is the best option to add more nutritional value to a dog's food.Pedigree dog food contains protein, fat, fiber, moisture, and, Omega acid.Here is the range of all nutrients of four Pedigree puppy productsProductProteinFatFiberMoistureOmegaChicken and vegetable flavour27114122.5Morsel in sauce with chicken941.5820.8Chicken and beef canned971.578-Grilled steak and vegetable flavour2711412-Choose food to mix on nutrient percentage in Pedigree. But what to mix with Pedigree exactly?We have taken the four most crucial nutrient percentages of protein, fat, fiber, and moisture. You can adjust each nutrient by adding other food items.1. Protein:You can add one to two eggs to a dog meal. According to WebMD, one egg has 7 grams of protein and 5 grams of fat.So, the egg is the best option for protein.2. Fat:Your dog can get fat from chicken, lamb, fish, and pork.Make sure you serve boiled non-veg food only.3. Fiber:Rice and oats are the best choices to increase fiber content.As Pedigree has low fiber, it is essential to add.4. Moisture:Milk and water. You don't have to pay extra for moisture content.But keep in mind that the milk must be low in fat.In short, you can mix eggs, chicken, milk, or oats with Pedigree.Where To Buy Pedigree Dog Food:You can buy Pedigree online or in offline market.FAQ: How To Feed Pedigree to PuppyHow much Pedigree to feed a puppy?The feeding amount depends on the weight, age, and activity level of the dog.Can I give Pedigree to my one- or two-month-old puppy?No. Until the puppy gets eight weeks old, it should be fed only on his mother's milk.After eight weeks, you can add 25% Pedigree in his food in his first meal and increase the percentage day by day.Is Pedigree good for puppies?Yes, Pedigree is a trusted company in the dog food industry. You can hardly hear that someone's dog is not eating Pedigree.How to give Pedigree gravy to a puppy?To make your meal delicious, the Pedigree gravy will help you a lot.Here, Is how to feed Pedigree gravy:Step 1: Add your food to a bowl according to your dog's needs.Step 2: Pour Pedigree gravy in the bow.Step 3: Mix it well and serve your puppy.Note: You can serve with boiled chicken, meat, or egg too.Can Pedigree be mixed with milk?Yes. You can mix Pedigree with milk. But make sure that milk must be low in fat. It will digest easily.Milk has nutrients like calcium and fat. It will help your puppy while growing. Another reason for mixing milk is wet food digest easily than dry food.Conclusion:Pedigree is well known and trusted brand in India. You can feed your dog Pedigree following my steps. Find a Pedigree stockist near you! Skip to main content Toy breed puppies should be fed 4 to 6 meals every day for the first three months, medium breed puppies should be fed thrice a day, and large breed puppies should be fed 3 to 4 meals every day. Both dry and wet food are good for puppies. Dry food is more convenient and has oral health benefits. Not to forget it also has a lower price tag. Puppies can be fed both wet and dry food. Wet food is recommended by vets since it is easy to chew, hydrates your dog better, and is more satiating. ©2024 Mars or Affiliates. Remember that each dogs is different. As a general guide we advise offering the daily amount of food recommended for the ideal bodyweight of your dog in the feeding guide on the pack. In the below guide you'll find the recommended daily calories for your dog, as well as feeding guidelines based on a diet of PEDIGREE® food for dogs. If you are feeding a different brand, please consult the calorie information on-pack and adjust the amount of food accordingly to meet your dog's recommended daily calories.Please remember:To half the daily amount of food if you are feeding two meals a day.The guidelines are based on your dog getting the right amount of exercise. If your dog has less than 1 hour exercise a day, please reduce quantity by 10%The Waltham Petcare Science Institute recommends feeding a mixed diet where 50% of calories come from wet food and 50% from dry food.The guidelines are based on all of your dog's recommended daily calories coming from 100% complete & balanced dry or wet food. Please adjust accordingly if you are going to feed any oral care products or treats.Please ensure that any 'non-complete' treats or food you are feeding your dog accounts for less than 10% of your dog's daily calories. The body size of dogs can range from 1 to 100kg, which is a greater range than any other species. There are different nutritional needs and specific health concerns linked to the size of dog. Larger dogs have a shorter life expectancy than small ones and reach senior status at a much earlier age. Therefore, larger breeds and giant breeds will benefit from a change to a Senior diet at an earlier age. This timeline provides an understanding of the life stages of different size dogs. Skip to main content Toy breed puppies should be fed 4 to 6 meals every day for the first three months, medium breed puppies should be fed 3 to 4 meals every day. Both dry and wet food are good for puppies. Dry food is more convenient and has oral health benefits. Not to forget it also has a lower price tag. Puppies can be fed both wet and dry food. Wet food is recommended by vets since it is easy to chew, hydrates your dog better, and is more satiating. ©2024 Mars or Affiliates. Skip to main content Toy breed puppies should be fed 4 to 6 meals every day for the first three months, medium breed puppies should be fed thrice a day, and large breed puppies should be fed 3 to 4 meals every day. Both dry and wet food are good for puppies. Dry food is more convenient and has oral health benefits. Not to forget it also has a lower price tag. Puppies can be fed both wet and dry food. Wet food is recommended by vets since it is easy to chew, hydrates your dog better, and is more satiating. ©2024 Mars or Affiliates.