For CIO, Enterprise Service Management Ä a key solution that drives increased commitment, productivity and satisfaction while reducing costs. Embracing the cloud, managing services services to companies from infrastructure maintenance restrictions. This evolution of service management is powered by access to new technological innovations whose companies need to remain competitive. Looking first to our past and how it has shaped the service counter of our times, we can begin to make forecasts on the evolution of the future. With the new imperative to extend the productivity gains obtained from the management of services outside the IT of IT, in the last five years companies have begun to exploit cloud technology to quickly extend the management of employees, giving priority to employees with external levels of service in each department, such as HR to implement rapid processes of employee entering. In essence, service management helps people carry out their work and major progress in terms of efficiency derive from technologies that can take advantage of users' historical data to provide more intelligent and automated services. Learning from our past, we can say with certainty that the next five years are even more innovation, which will further expand the impression of Service Management throughout the company, making it a standard service in each department, in every company and in each sector. The management of today's services «Predilitivity and intelligence The management of cloud-based services has made the data consumption models easier, while increasing the productivity and the total cost of properties. I believe that the evolution of a more intelligent service desk will culminate in a semi-autonomous service desk that enables service wherever by performing and automating the natural transitions between traditional self-service technologies and a human agent, what Forrester calls to blended. This is the user's expectation. Thanks to of Machine Learning, organizations can automatically suggest resources or elements of the services catalog within the service portal or through a mobile application, reducing the number of tickets and improving the accuracy of Employee expectations have changed as customer service experience in consumer-oriented markets has become more immediate and complete on a number of communication platforms, including the use of chatbot, email and social channels Media as Twitter. The implementation of cloud-based IT services management has enabled IT teams to switch from the management of tickets break-fixes to the implementation of entire service catalogs containing information on deliverable, contact points and processes to request a 6 " Wide range of IT services as software updates, backup points and the implementation of new hardware devices. IT leaders have pushed to promote alignment and value for business, offering departments that are typically equipped with services management practices the possibility of providing more efficient updates and simplified processes. Service management is now at the culmination of a new transformation; Once he returned to the borders of it but now he is expanding to all the departments of the organization.
